

STANLEY PIPES 'EM OFF AT CHICAGO

THE ANSWER

"Trying to make a man of herself," is Ida Tarbell's interpretation of the feminist movement in her essay, "The Uneasy Woman," and it hit so hard that a mass meeting was held in New York to answer her.

"Trying to make a human being of herself," is the answer of Charlotte Perkins Gilman, another brilliant thinker and writer.

To a mere man two good answers to those who think woman can do no good outside of their homes are these: Ida Tarbell and Charlotte Perkins Gilman.

RIGHT THAR!

Tottie—The manager at the Gaiety selected 20 chorus girls in 15 minutes.

Flossie—My, but he's quick at figures.
